Greenhills, as a private school, sets forth a strong image of serious concern for the future. It is a place to cultivate young minds, to strive to meet as yet unreached potential. The school is, above all else, an academic institution. There is, however, another side to Greenhills, a side that might not be obvious to the casual observer. High school is the middle ground between youthful mindlessness and the frightening unknown future. As they prepare to face the unknown, the students take every opportunity to hold on to what mindlessness they can. That is where this other dimension of Greenhills life originates. A need to realize just what it is we're giving up to become adults. Call it rowdiness, call it self-realization, but whatever you call it, recognize it as as much a part of Greenhills as the educational experience itself.

FACULTY

Although they represent the academic facet of Greenhills, the faculty has been known, at times, to help enrich the less educationally focused opportunities the school offers. In a responsible way, of course.

ACTIVITIES

Co-curricular. It's a big word. The activities Greenhills offers give students a chance to explore their interests, and to try things as yet untried. Most important is the freedom from the pressure of grades, a freedom that tends to draw students to that "other dimension" of Greenhills life.

This year's student council got off to a shooting start. The agenda this year included presenting speakers, improving the Greenhills "ethos", the reconstruction of the student constitution, and communication with other area schools. Dave Simon and John Ramsburgh provided great leadership and Spencer Glendon's incredible note-taking mornings were almost bearable — right Sue? For those of us who got there on time, meetings were very successful (Corey, Bill, and Deb — yes, we know you got in an accident). Highlights of the year included helping to mold the new Gryphon Club and Student Activities Committee, supporting the successful A.W.A.R.E. group and circulating the Milton Academy petition. Our favorite council pastime was forming committees (right, Heather, Helen, John, and Loren?).

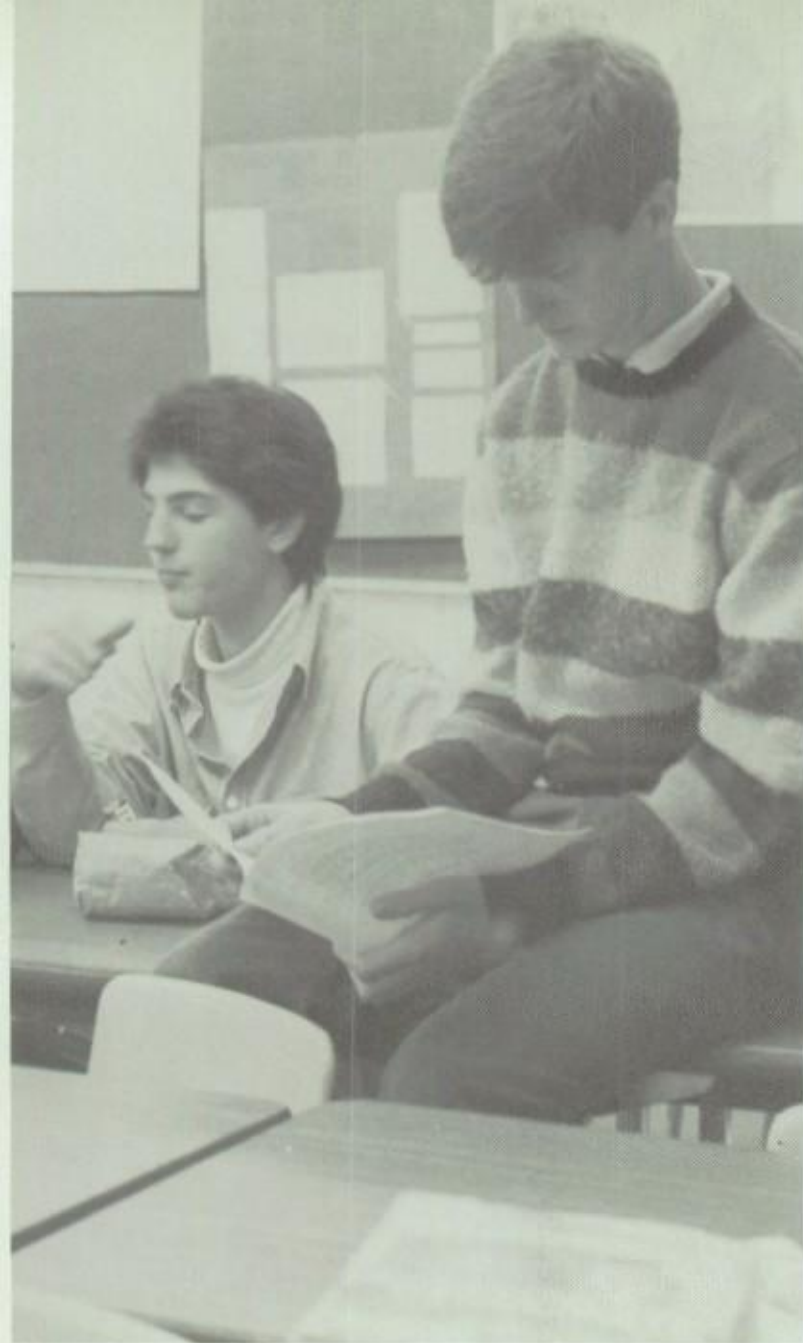

The 1986-1987 MSSC, headed by Mike Dublin and Neal Sahni (both of whom won by default), was distinctly representative of the school. John Lutz would make, Adam Baru would second, and Mike Dubin would entertain any motion, leading to a vote that almost always resulted in an election. In Holly Lauwers we had the most efficient secretary ever seen at Greenhills; all minutes and each agenda were always neatly typed and distributed to each member. Duncan Elkins, who found himself appointed treasurer, didn't do a lot with money, but commented often and was appointed to several committees. Kristie Klaiber was a valuable member whose contributions, such as "Whoopie!" and "Soooo!" and an occasional "I don't care!" were really taken to heart by council members. Others who added greatly to the council were Mike Masters, Julie Kim, John Whitmore, Kiana Woods, and Jenny Lin. Council devoted its attention to changing the dress code in minor ways, reorganizing the Ski Club, and starting the first annual 7/8 Formal.

A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM

It was the wandering of an insane mind that first considered that the 1986 Fall Play might be Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream, but then insanity is the norm at this beloved institution, and so Nancy Heusel attempted what seemed impossible: To do Shakespeare at Greenhills, and to do it so people could understand it.

Things seemed shaky at first, for the group lost two Thisbys and it was looking hopeless when suddenly John "I could be a fairy if you like" Ramsburgh walked through the door. As the melting pot of a cast congealed, Mrs. Heusel attempted to set their minds toward the final result: the cast party. The first obstacle was learning one's lines, and the hardest part was usually understanding them. Many skipped that step and just committed the whole mess to memory, but by opening night most knew what they were saying, or at least thought they did. Characters slowly developed, helped by the naturally bizarre personalities of the actors, but the search for a Shakespearean tone sometimes seemed futile ("Arif, where'd you get a Bostonian accent?"). Opening night seemed to suddenly loom before the crazy bunch, and finishing touches were quickly made, or unmade as the case may be. ("All you need are a few lobster traps, and the stage'll look just like a wharf.") Despite the overwhelming feeling of unpreparedness, the performances went well, allowing for such things as faulty props (or lack thereof), missed entrances ("You've been on stage for a while now."), and some very weird line changes ("*@#$! . . . What's goin' on?"). In the end it seemed they had succeeded, for not only did the audience enjoy the performances, but they passed the ultimate Shakespearean test: Mr. Underhill laughed.

The debate team had one of its better seasons under two-year head coach John Beusterien. With the help of Wayne Tang, the new assistant coach, Greenhills gained a reputation as one of the strongest debating schools in the state. The novice team (Mumon, Gorav, Johnny, Brent, Matt) received an award at every tournament and finished first at Wayne State. The varsity team (Shauna, Kent, Renan, Mike, Raleigh) had a shaky start, but succeeded in ironing out its problems near the end of the season, placing fifth out of seventy-two teams at Sterling Heights Stevenson's major invitational. Both novice and varsity teams finished near the top in their state tournaments.

This year's edition of Forward has been a learning experience. When we called our first board meeting in the middle of August none of the four of us was quite sure of what was going on or how to start the ball rolling in the right direction. However, we did decide that we wanted something different in our book this year — something that would set standards — something with style. (It's amazing how when you don't quite know what you're doing, you never think of adding new complications to the pattern, or to the fact that you're getting in over your head. It's not until you begin to comprehend the magnitude of your task that you realize that you've taken on more than you can handle. At that point you just smile and tread water, praying that somehow everything will work out.) So, nine months, thousands of pictures, numerous orange pencils, a couple of croppers, a box of computer disks, and a wanker or two later, you see the result — sixteen more pages, name stamping, silver foil on the cover, and something that might even be said to resemble a theme. We hope that the book you see this year will set a precedent for future yearbooks, but more than that, we hope that you will see yourself within these pages — and remember.

THE ALCOVE

Torn between such names as the Gotham Gazette, the Tabloid, and That Damn Paper, the 86-87 newspaper board (no longer just a staff) rose forth and chose the administration endorsed title, The Alcove. Though not as experimental as previous papers, the challenge they faced was far from small, considering their resources and experience, when added together, equalled something just above nothing. A quick and sinister subscription drive yielded bucketloads of money ("Let's buy a pizza. Lots of pizzas."). Minor disaster, a constant companion, presented the board with interesting problems such as a not-so-trusty disk ("Error 24? What the hell is that?"), a printer suffering from indigestion ("I think it's growling ..."), and the mysterious floating deadline ("Thursday. definitely, probably, possibly Thursday."). The first issue was finally finished, eliciting a ... well ... casually positive response, and the board, confident of their skill in publishing, began to challenge the impossible. Wildly heroic things like making deadlines on time, having real meetings, and getting the administration to pay for 42 pizzas.

This year, the Evergreen continued its tradition of successful publications with an increased staff and our faculty advisor, Ms. DePree. While innovations in content and cover color were introduced, many things remained the same: re-paginating; working three hours a night in the week before deadline; the Masculine Minority; and a variety of talent displayed by the contributors. The magazine was well engineered by all those who contributed their thought to editing, their patience to typing, and their Friday lunch periods to staff meetings. We were again fortunate to use the school's computer in producing an efficiently organized (sometimes) and professional-looking Evergreen. Many thanks to the staff members for their efforts, the writers and artists who contributed their work, and Ms. DePree for her advice and sanity. Everyone helped make this year's Evergreen continue its tradition of quality.

The members of A.W.A.R.E. meet for lunch.

In October of this year, AWARE, a student run organization devoted to cultural and ethnic awareness, held its first meeting. In November, AWARE made its debut presentation with the first in a series of culture weeks, with a demonstration of Jewish tradition. Later, in January, AWARE sponsored a display of East Asian culture, and in February, AWARE's plans to bring Black History month to Greenhills were successful. Numerous activities and other cultural pursuits ensued. These events included films, guest speakers, displays and ethnic food days. The membership is open to all students and faculty and we hope to continue to be productive in the years to come.

This year the German club had a fun and successful year. We celebrated our traditional Oktoberfest at the Old German restaurant. The tenth anniversary of the German Club was celebrated at the Auses' house and our annual spring trip to Frankenmuth in the spring brought our activities to a close.

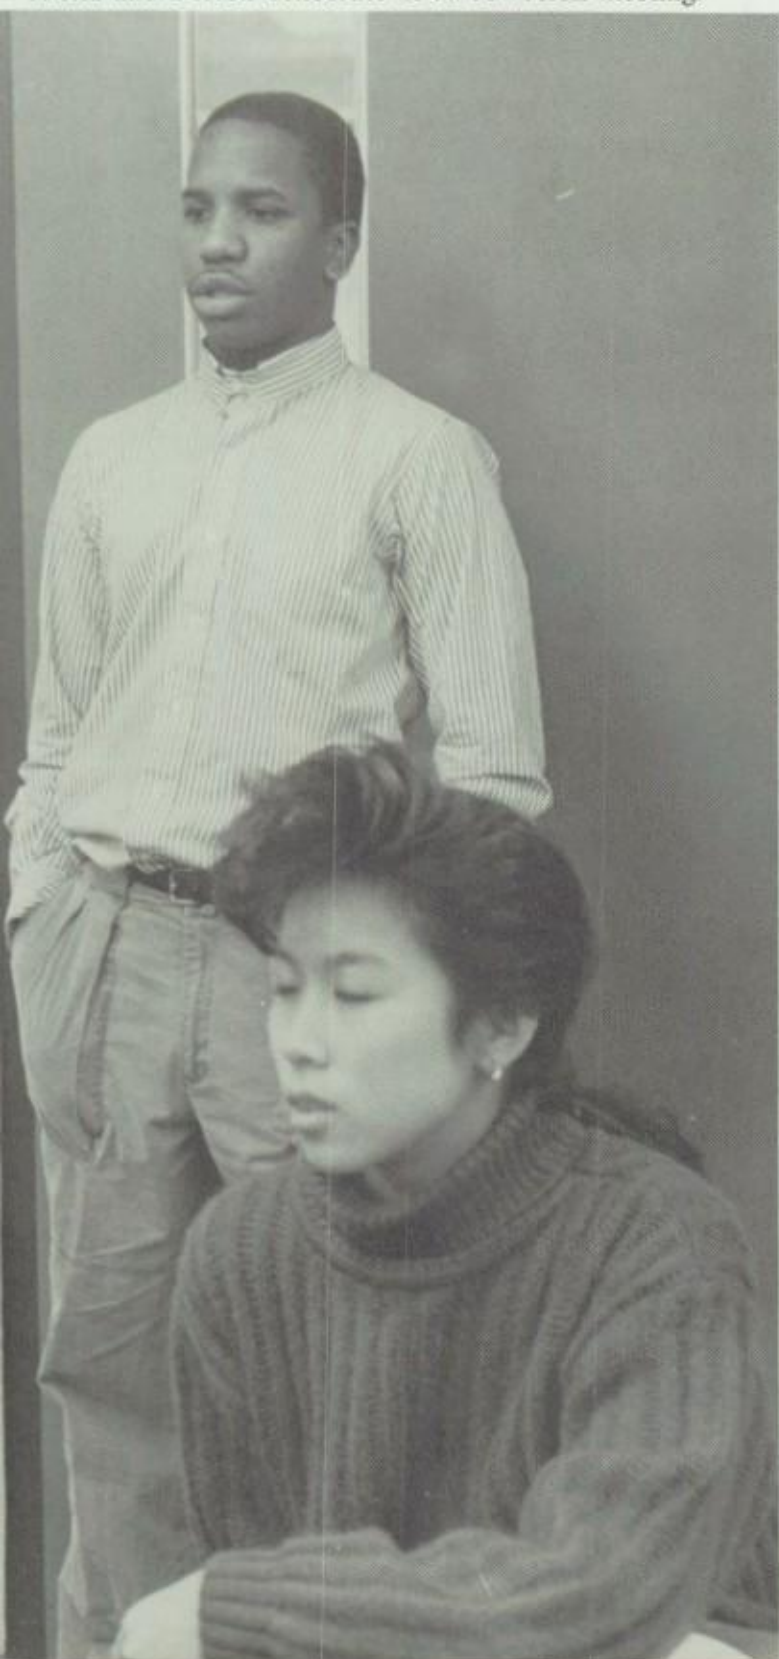

This year's Tree Club was a new creation having only one requirement for membership: being a senior that has run one's car into some large object, ideally a tree, but things such as cars, buses and telephone poles were also acceptable. Sadly for Greenhills (though not for Ann Arbor) this group will be going on to bigger and better things next year. We can only hope that the class of '88 has some aspiring drivers to take over their hallowed positions.

Sarah evaluates "the men".

John, we put you in the layout!

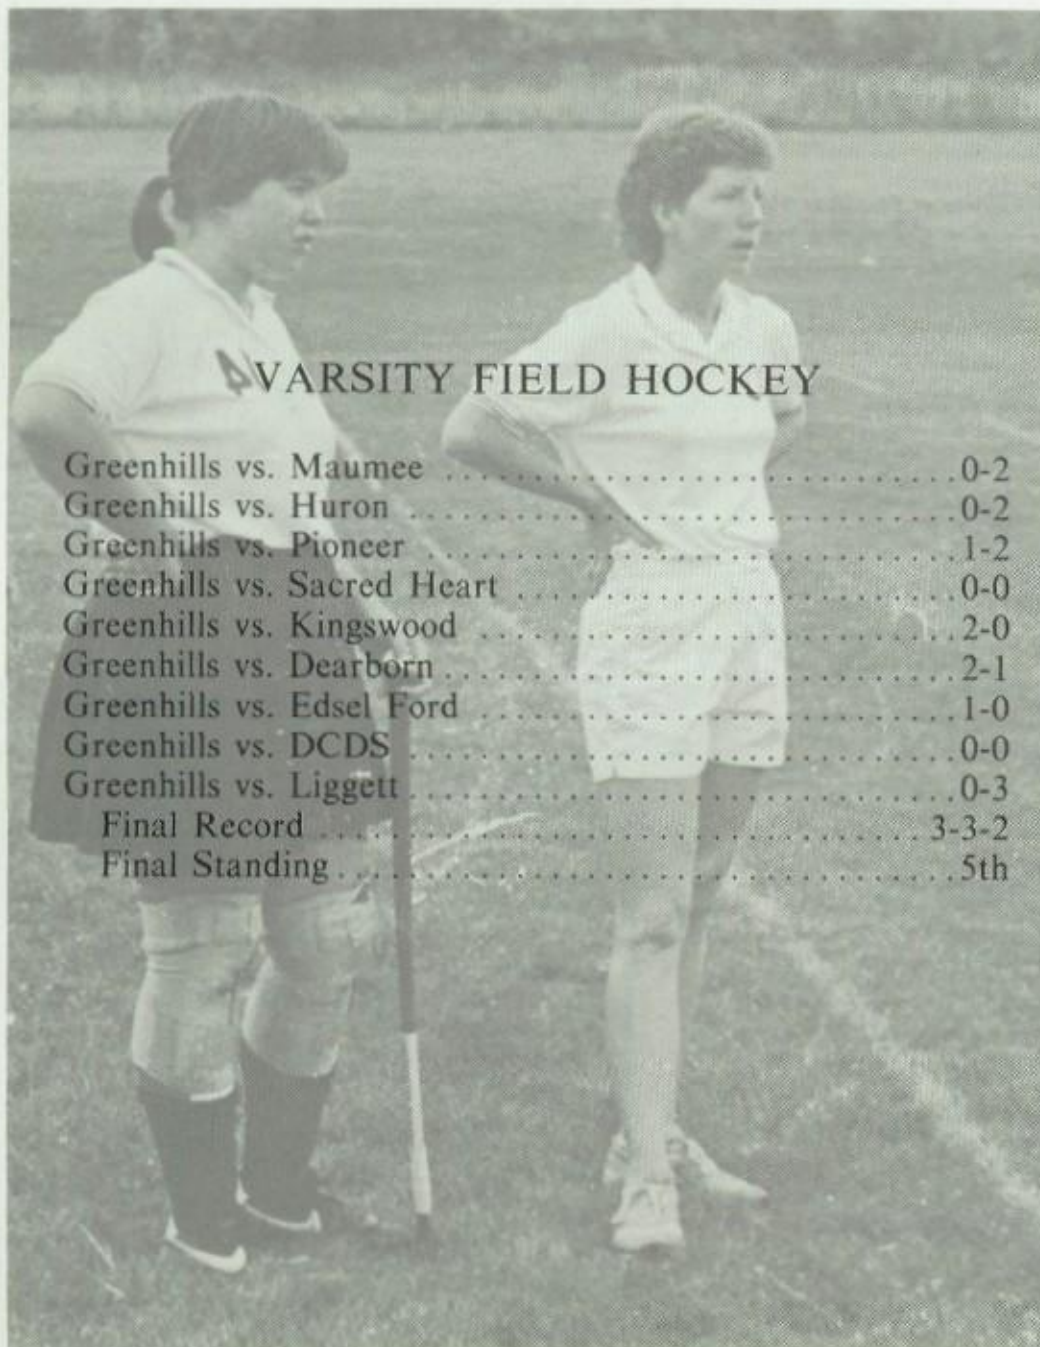

Two basketball players, a tennis player, a non-runner and four veterans: this was what the cross-country team consisted of at the beginning of the season. Obviously, there was reason to be concerned. Not only was it an inexperienced squad, and not only did we have little chance of making it to the state meet, but AC/DC was no longer appreciated by the majority. As coach Bruce Dyer so eloquently put it, "Gee . . . things don't look so good." However, it was soon apparent that lurking within this rag-tag, confused pack of newcomers was both the desire and ability to become bona-fide runners. Taking third at the Shamrock Invitational, second at our own meet, and first and second at Whitmore Lake, it appeared that the scum might rise to the top. It was at this point that Mike "damn — I've-got-another-stress-fracture" Dubin became a gimp, leaving us to face regionals without a fourth man. October 25 rolled around, and 18 minutes 30 seconds after the starting gun our fifth man crossed the line, giving us a narrow but awe-inspiring victory. The star that shines brightly didn't shine very long, though. It was only a week later, in the Arctic Tundra of the U.P. that all but one of our team members managed to crawl on all fours through the grueling State Meet course. Senior John Ramsburgh, third year varsity, was fourth in the state, as well as making All-State. For the rest of the team, the state meet will be the object of recurring and rather unpleasant nightmares. To quote our tasteful and ever-supportive coach, "I'm just looking forward to next year."

The Girls' Cross Country team had its ups and downs with the exception of the consistent performance of Sarah Laverty. Though by no means a team of stand-outs, Sarah quickly proceeded to rise to the top of the pack. She managed to place first in all of the races for Greenhills and also accomplished the feat of carrying the Greenhills runners all the way to the State Meet without even breaking into a sweat. All in all, this was a rebuilding year for the Gryphons in the sense that next year they will rebuild the fall athletic schedule, dropping Girls' Cross Country, indefinitely. Rock-on!

RIGHT: I wish we played in a nice, warm gym.

This is more than "just a game!"

Kathy goes for the ball.

It was a season marked by mud and rain. Our parents got a view of a typical game on Parents' Day, when what started out as a sunny day turned gray and drizzly. The fourteen members of the team (which was considered large compared to other years) became quite adept at driving the ball down the field while both feet were planted under the mud. We were so used to the awful field conditions that for the last few games, dry fields caused scoreless ties. However, not all of our games were such — a fact that both reassured and disappointed our coach, Chris Boyd.

The J.V. Field Hockey team was dominated by attitudes rather than athletes this year, a fact that brought us surprisingly good success. Everyone on the team had great spirit and we all played very, very well together. We were undefeated up until the Pioneer game, our only loss. Our coach, Shawn Perry, really made the team, and we all owe thanks to her. She had tons of spunk and a desire to win, which inspired us. Uggi, Uggi, Uggi, Oi, Oi, Oi!

SOCCER

This year's season certainly was a memorable one. After some ups and downs the varsity team ended with a winning record, and capped the season with an unusually successful effort in district and regional competition. The players could not bring back a regional championship to the school, but it wasn't for lack of trying, as they gave eventual state champ Northport all it could ask for before bowing out. Several members of a fine team received individual state honors: freshman John Whitmore was named first team All-State, Tim Charles made the second team, and both Daryl Hultquist and Stuart Shulman received honorable mentions.

And season's end was not the only high point. There were many other experiences to look back on: camp at Blufton, the Ypsi victory, the annointment of the Eternal One (Carl Bergstrom), Louie Louie, the breaking of Bart's wind, Johnny Whitmore and his sacred head, and the Special Olympics up north. Most of all, the team was thankful for the miraculous job of Coach Fehrenbach (Roach Fernberg). The team wouldn't have achieved the success it did without him (nor would we have had Sammy, our mascot).

George makes a shadow animal for the team.

GGIIRLLSS

If you came out to the courts this Fall, you probably realized that we had a new coach, Hanky VanDeWege. With her support, we had a very successful season, with a final record of 9-4. Highlights of the season included a second place finish at Regionals and a fifth place finish at the State Finals in Holland! The team, led by Captain Sarah Cosovich, was mostly filled with juniors and was also complemented by two sophomores and two freshmen. Luckily we won't lose anyone for next year's team.

This year we practiced getting up at 5:30 in the morning for the Alto Invitational, in which we did well, for Regionals, and especially for States, when we stayed at the Best Western Hotel. "Whoops, this is someone else's room!" "You're kidding me, we're eating at Denny's and Bill Knapps?", "Hey DON'T TOUCH THAT DOOOGGG!", "Nacho Cheese", "Merging, Merging", the team language — Greeks live! "GGIIRLLSS!" "Come here Pasha!" "Those girls are lying, it's not their birthdays!" "You're from Ann Arbor? Wow, I'm from Jackson!", "Same seats!", "Don't worry, Holland, we will be back!", "And remember GGIIRLLSS — KEEP YOUR RECEIPTS!"

REST ON THE LINE

"Can I have a large diet coke, please?" It seemed like we spent the whole season laughing at Amy. In our spare time, however, we did manage to fit in a little basketball (and a whole lot of sprints)! But on the days when both nobody swore and the van was clean, practice was more than just running. Imagine Therese crashing into the bleachers or Kaya spending more time on the floor than on her feet. And remember those wonderful weeks which more than half the team shared. Something must have been right, though. We ended the season with a winning record, an accomplishment in itself, losing only a few games by only a few points. The highlight of the season was a win over Emmanuel Baptist, a team which destroyed us a year ago. Barb, all those sprints paid off. We elect you President of the Dictionary Club and promise to set you up with the Southfield coach. What a fun season!! "Kristie, stick your knee up her . . ." and DON'T CROSS THE LINE! Pudge-master! Mr. Manning's directions: "Turn right at the X-rated movie theatre, left at the bowling alley." We end up at the Allen Park Convalescent Home. Brutus Beefcake! W.W.F. Girls, what's taped to your water bottles? Jessica, don't ever ask us to put your hair up again! Sue: pre-game necessity: push it out.

Oh, and yes, we did hear you burp. OH MY GOD! Wendy, we're sure the man in the parking lot enjoyed what he saw. YOU BE ROBBED!

Final Record — 14-6

J.V. Record — 17-2

This year's Men's J.V. Basketball team had the best season of any Greenhills basketball team. We started the season by going 12-0 and defeating such teams as Ypsi, Liggett, and Maumee Valley. The team was led by Co-Captains Ash Joshi and Nathan Harrison, who along with Josh Borders and David Nissly comprised the starting lineup, with Klenton Willis, Lee Bollinger, and Mike Carpenter rotating at the center position. All season long our bench provided unmeasurable support both on and off the court. The "Pine Team" was led by such performers as Sophomores Remzi Arpac and Kevin Hultquist along with Freshmen Dan Price, Mike Masters, and Vijay Kumra. Last we would like to thank Coach George "Pete" Pullen and Assistant Coach and inspirational leader Jon Weed, for making us run countless suicides and endless tip drills.

Daryl proves that height is not everything.

Josh flexes his calves.

Derron outsmarts the defense.

The 1986-87 Men's Varsity Basketball team, with its quick-paced running and pressing style of play, sped its way to a third straight winning season. Led in scoring by Senior Co-Captain Derron Simon and Junior Tom Guenther, the team featured seven starting-caliber players, each of whom contributed heavily to our impressive record. In addition to Bo and Guenther, the Gryphons counted on Senior Co-Captain David Simon for rebounds and tough, consistent defense, third-year player Daryl Hultquist and "Sophomore Sensation" Chip Hatcher for scoring as well as reliable control of the offense from the point-guard position. Starting guard Hans Hwang often sparked the Gryphons with his aggressive defense, and Ray Holly came off the bench to add consistent scoring and rebounding.

Coach Andy Manning's team was held together by a strong team defensive effort and featured an offense which could strike from anywhere — by fast break, outside shot, the drive, or from the low post. Season highlights included a mid-season six-game winning streak, a 90-32 victory at the Silverdome, a 10-point win over new arch-rival Inter-City Baptist. The Gryphons look forward to equalling this year's success in the coming seasons, but they will have to do it without the help of this year's graduating seniors Daryl H., the two Simons, Buck O'Casey, crowd-pleaser Campy Campbell, and Scot Haynes, all of whom have put in many years of hard work for the program.

The soccer teams were outstanding. The A-Team, coached by Mr. Shuster, had a final record of 6-1-1. We were led in scoring by Tim Ludwig, Mark Eisendrath, John Westen, and John Balbach. This success could not have been possible without the extraordinary defense of Rob Howe and Karen Jones. Many of the games came down to the wire, but we always seemed to pull through, due to the excellent play of our goalie, Kieth Lieberthal, the backbone of the team. The B-Team also had an exceptional season, coached by Ritu Sahni, with a 7-0-1 record. Leading scorers were Howard Lu, Doug Kleinman, and Kevin Busch. Defense was led by Geoff Halliday, Asmat Noori, Dave Whitmore, and goalies Patrick Jordan and Matt Pauli. It was a fun season for both teams. Even though we were separate teams on the field, we felt a real unity off the field.

The seventh and eighth grade Field Hockey team did very well this year, considering the fact that five of the original eight games were rained out. The highlight of the season was a tie for first in the Liggett Tournament. Thanks to Vicki Frazier and the whole team for working so hard all the time.

The Seventh Grade Boys' Basketball team really played tough this year, under the guidance of Coach Ed Shuster. Paul Hambleton, Jeff Lieberthal, and Keith Buckman led the team, playing well all season. With so much potential in this whole group, look forward to a better, more experienced team next year.

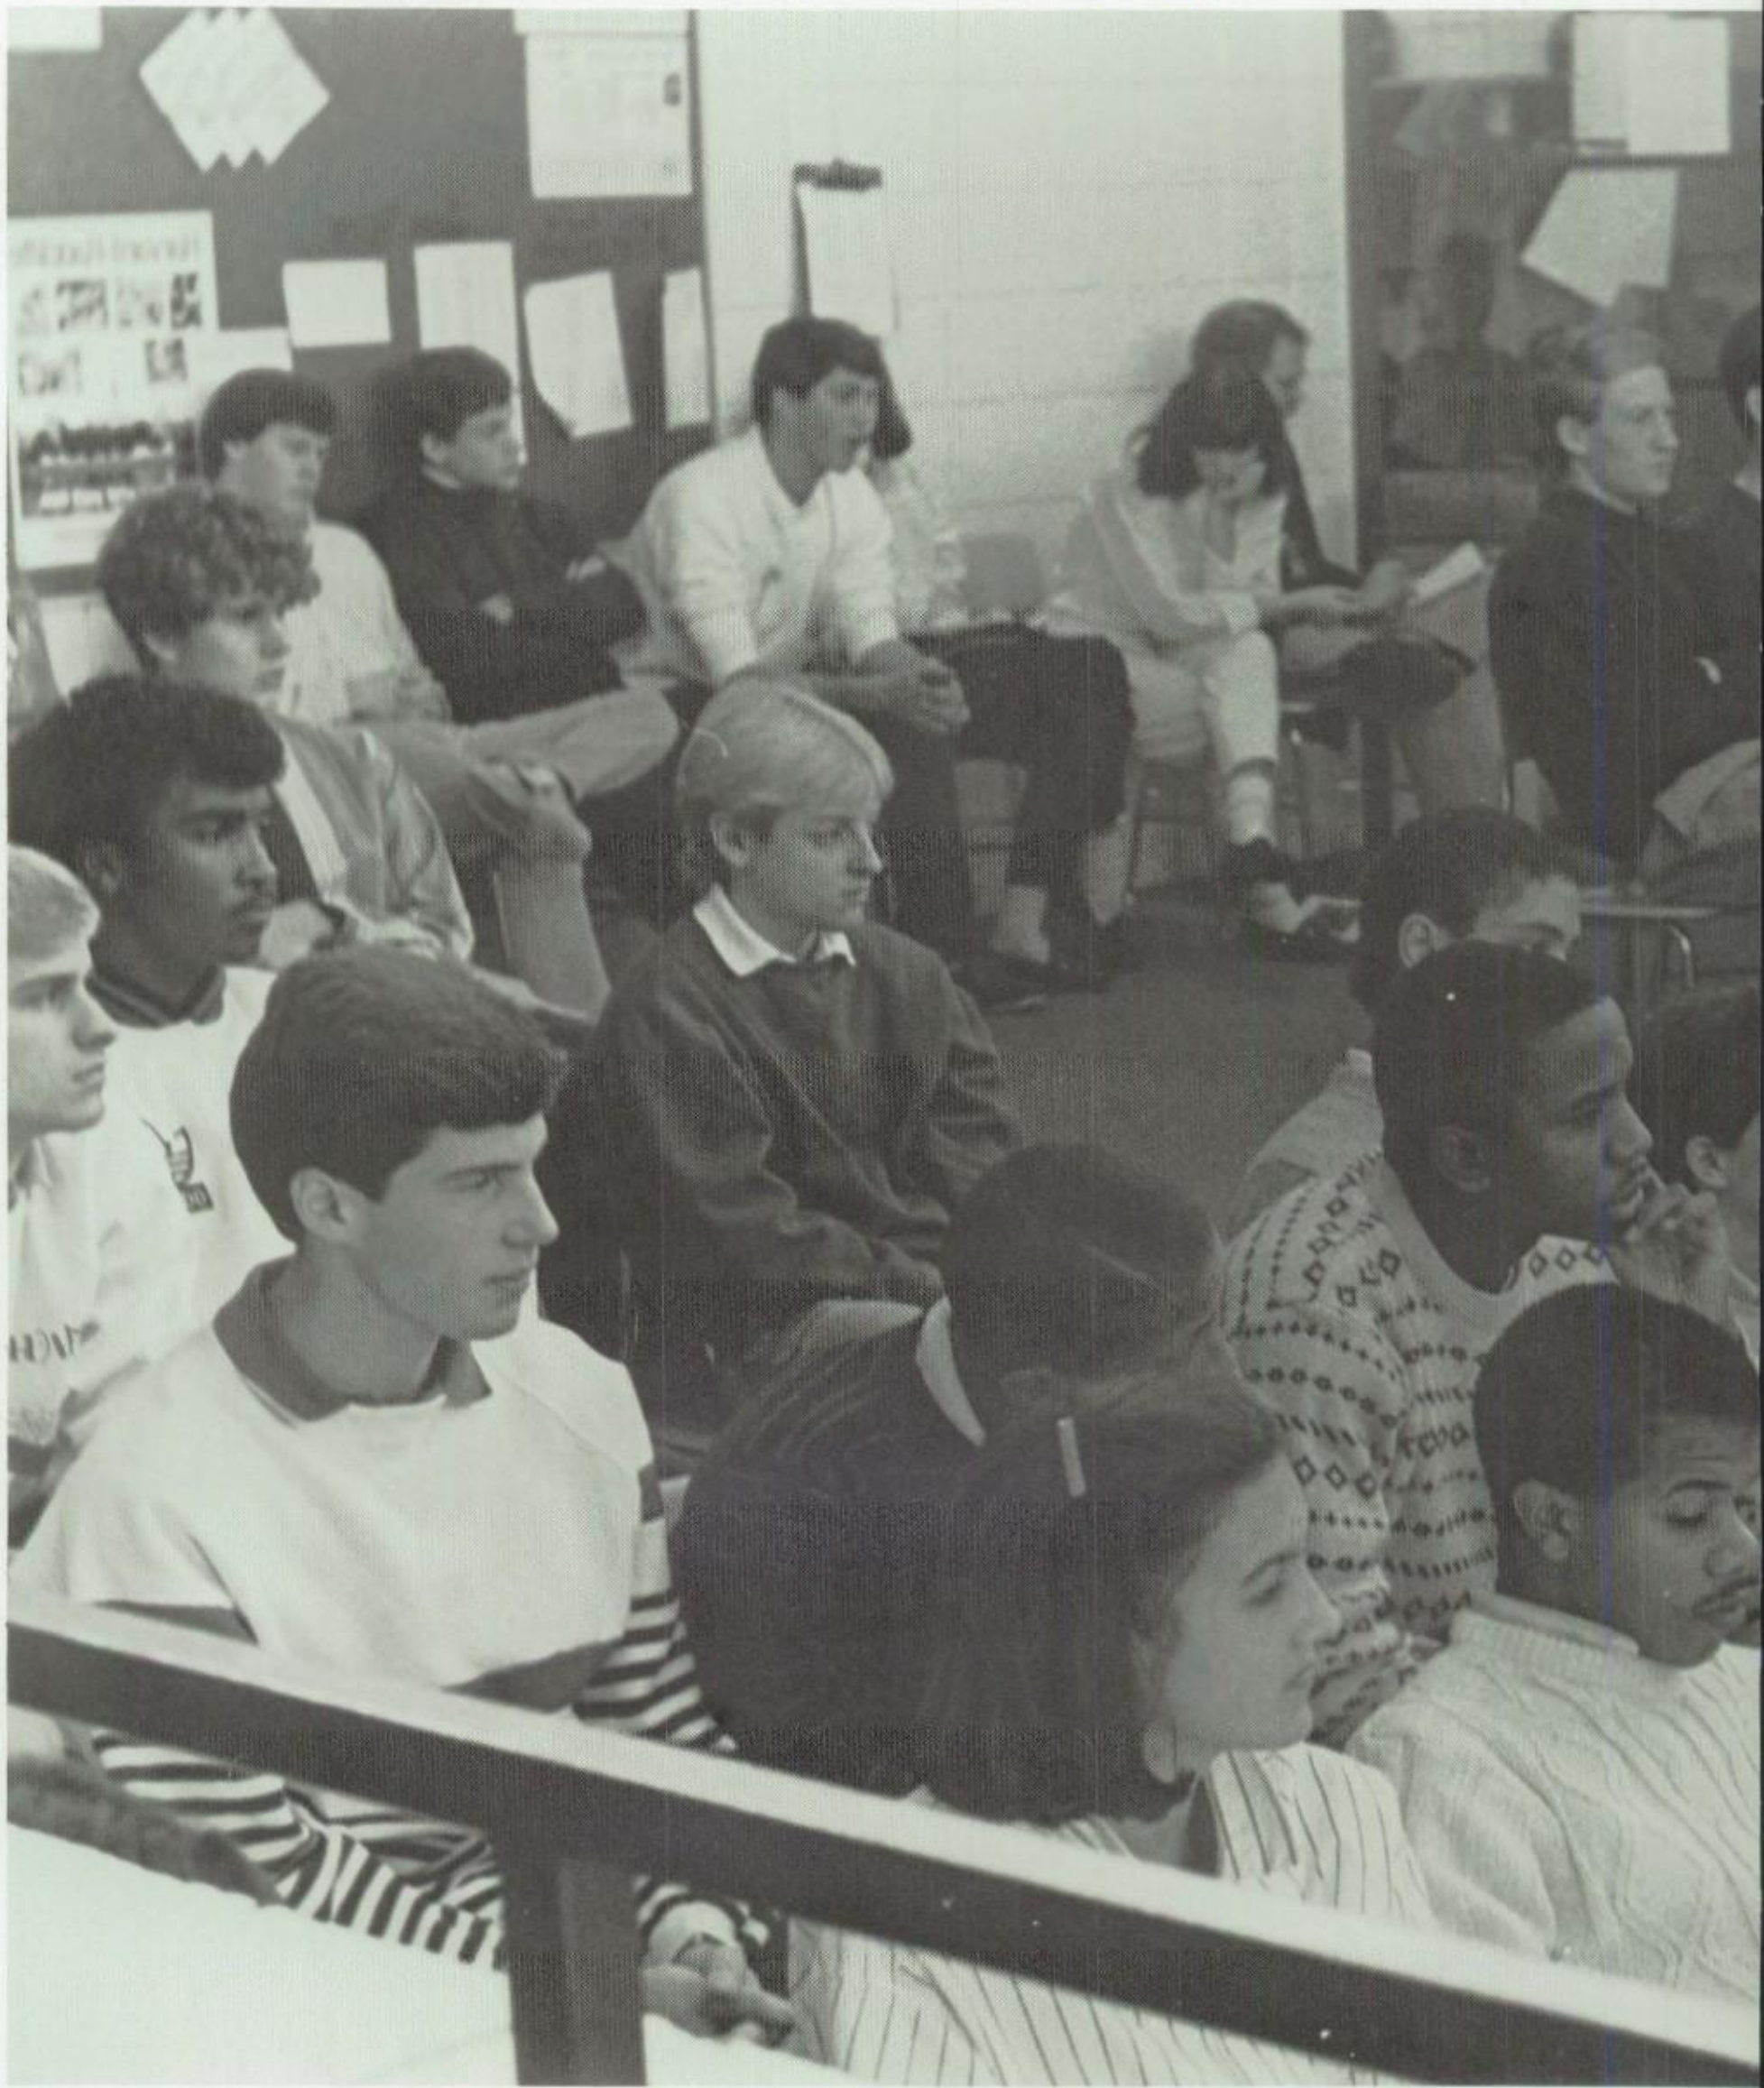

The Eighth Grade Boys' Basketball Team improved steadily throughout the season. We really came together and played as a team. Fred Buckman played better and better each game as our center, scoring a lot of points. Keith Lieberthal, a power forward, also made a lot of baskets. Robbie Howe moved the ball well at point guard. Coach Luke Jansen taught us new things about the game of basketball and even some other stuff.

The Middle School Girls' Basketball team was a combined Seventh and Eighth grade team, coached by Mira Jansen. Standish Stewart was the high-scoring Seventh grader, while Karen Jones, Liz Cook, and Toni Trapani were the most valuable players from the Eighth grade. The team got a lot of experience throughout the season and learned that you don't have to be six feet tall to play good basketball. Get ready for summer B-ball camp.

STUDENT LIFE

Due to the tremendous amount of time spent at school, students are forced to find ways to entertain themselves. Perhaps it is out of this endeavor that the less intellectual aspect of Greenhills finds its greatest nourishment. There is no one less concerned with academics than someone trying to have fun.

Fall '86 saw Greenhills students putting their thoughts, their talents, and their concerns together to create a series of unusually meaningful experiences. The newly formed student group A.W.A.R.E. lived up to its title by arranging a trip to the Holocaust Center in Detroit and organizing a highly successful Jewish Cultural Awareness Week. Students in all divisions were addressed by visiting speakers on several significant aspects of the Jewish culture, and "The Wave," a film depicting the disturbing readiness of a group of high school seniors to be drawn into a fascistic organization, was shown and discussed.

Student council drew more than sixty students to an evening meeting designed for student response to expressed parent concerns about drinking (the continuing saga of Effie Zee). Discussion covered a wide range of issues and led to student resolves to alleviate the situation, among them the use of designated drivers and of more open communication between students and their parents.

Greenhills was also visited by the euphoniously named Bowdoin College "Meddiebempsters," a male singing group which managed to make Amy Long blush and shamelessly hyped its alma mater at the same time. Traditional awards assemblies also highlighted the excellence of Greenhills Scholars and the accomplishment and participation of Greenhills athletes.

STUDENT LIFE

The beautiful Christmas landscape of Michigan, a primarily green one, served to strengthen school spirit if not a seasonal enthusiasm. Several advisories involved themselves in local charities, like Ms. DePree's toy drive, and Mrs. Friedlander's food collections for the Ronald McDonald house. Mr. Pasich's advisory was on the cutting edge of the creative wave of door decoration with the grim announcement of the assassination of St. Nick. Yuletide cheer inspired (or forced) students to sing together at the fourth annual all-school Christmas sing. A smaller group took a little more initiative by going to Glacier Hills and carolling. Those unable to participate in these activities expressed their holiday sentiments by lobbing chunks of wet, icy snow at each other.

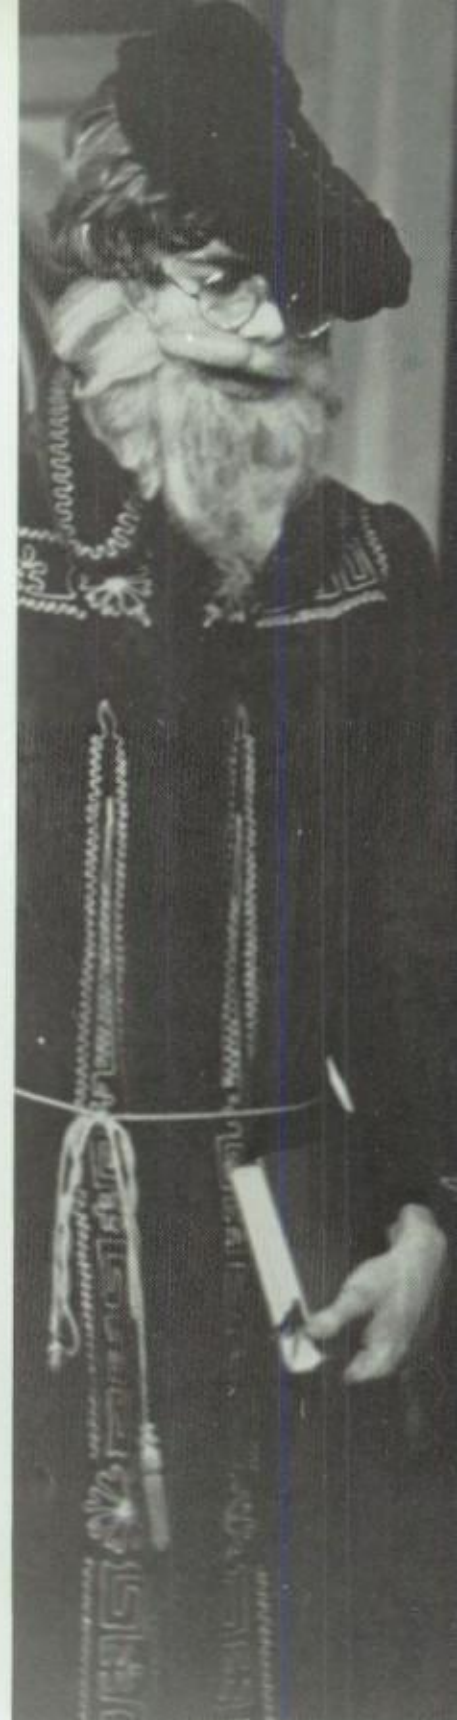

Art at Greenhills seemed to find numerous ways to manifest itself. The halls were conspicuously littered by the artwork of students, in fact, more so than ever before. The orchestra's winter concert proved to be satisfactory, providing an experience that certainly left an impression upon its audience. The chorus, with its new director, Julie Megginson, clearly showed movement in a new direction. The Suaves, in their third year, continued to attempt to prove their masculinity by singing falsetto whenever possible. The Madrigal Dinner, also celebrating its third anniversary, gave parents and faculty an opportunity to experience medieval life for an evening, as well as Mr. Underhill's second theatrical endeavor.

In an attempt to reduce the amount of hallway clutter, the administration installed coat hooks and removed the slants from the Upper School lockers. Interestingly, although the hooks and lockertops were soon jammed by personal possessions, the mounds of junk in the halls continued to pile, unfazed by the changes.

The class of '87 yielded a high percentage of 'Survivors'. Sorry, Spencer, we've loved you for six years, but it wasn't enough to get you in the picture.

Asian Culture Week proved to be a mind opening and stomach turning experience with such activities as Gabriel Chin's lecture on Chinese food, a cuisine that apparently includes everything from the nastiest insects you can dig up to man's best friend. Despite their loss of appetite, the student body enjoyed the opportunities offered during the week to explore Asia's society and customs.

Mr. Underhill's creative writing class produced a pair of plays, written by John Ramsburgh and Jo Kulik, along with an "interesting" movie, written by Nat Forstner. Although one shouldn't expect to see any of them appearing on Broadway, they were wonderfully entertaining.

The Juniors and Seniors, in an attempt to prove that Gryphons haven't forgotten how to have a good time, sponsored a couple of extremely successful dances. It should be noted that the only disease passed at the V.D. dance was a seasonal cold.

Mr. Zellers' Warfare class went on a trip to see Oliver Stone's Platoon. The experience was, to quote a participant, "powerful". The class was also the origin of the planned Greenhills Civil War trip.

The reformed Gryphon Club showed a great deal of initiative through pep-rallies, hat-designing contests, and slightly hostile advertising. Though the body yield at the rallies was not quite what was hoped, spirit abounded nevertheless, showing itself in the stands at the basketball games.

The Senior class found itself an outlet for the pressures that had built up within their skulls during the Junior year: dressing up like total fools. It provided a refreshing change of pace, especially Punk day, which resulted in some very interesting reactions from faculty and visitors.

Mr. Posante attempted to teach a small group of Gryphons to tap dance. We need say no more.

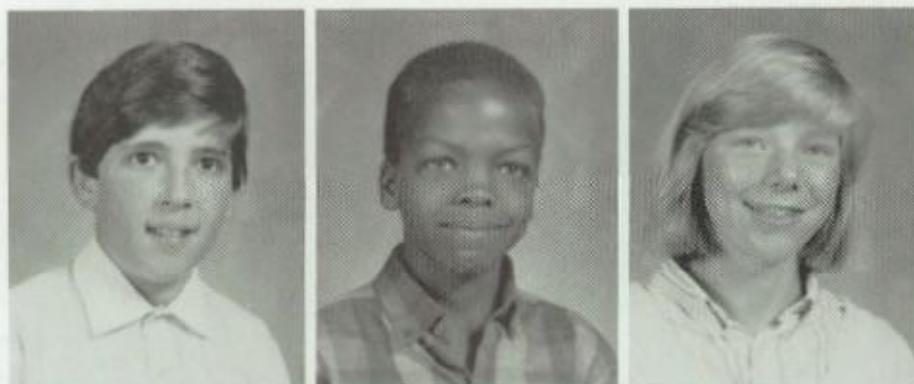

PEOPLE

The school could be purely academic if it were not for one thing: the student body. Greenhills students are consumed by a desire to educate themselves; in fact, their passions usually lie elsewhere. They are here to learn, and the first thing they discover is that there is much more to life than academic pursuits.

SENIORS

The class of '87 stands as testimony to the school's "other dimension." Many have, in fact, pondered the possibility that this class leans a little bit further towards that side of the Greenhills experience than the academic one.

STEVEN ANDREWS

The word "Greenhills" means more than just a place. It is six years of fun and six years of work. "Greenhills" means all the students I have known, all the teachers who have helped me, all the classes I have taken. "Greenhills" is a spirit which can be friendly, funny, cruel, ecstatic, serious, strange

... Seven years ago I walked in the front door to take the SSAT. I progressed on to seventh grade fraction books (only three months late), eighth grade computer, and Jaws, the extra-dumb pig. Then there was the impossible French IV-A and the Physics book trick. Finally, after finishing advanced chem. and calculus, I gather my books and papers and head out the north door. My senior year is over but Greenhills is not. I will always remember my "learning experience."

"The sooner you get behind, the more time you have to catch up."

I Love You.

Are ringing though my open view
Inciting and inviting me
Limitless undying love which Shines around me like a million suns
It calls me on and on, across the universe."

BRANDT CASEY

I remember back in seventh grade when graduation seemed so far off, but the years have gone by so quickly, and in a few months I will be leaving Greenhills, taking with me only the memories of 6 fun filled years. Plymouth the vast wasteland. Unforgettable driving experiences courtesy of: Jon Weed. Studying with Tom: Did you snap your fingers at me? Hey don't drink that! No I'm all right, Really! The famous spaghetti. Working hard on Senior Ad Day. Birds on roller coasters? What is the significance of lemonade? Chinese Writing!

Thanks to all my friends, especially the lunch table, the hoop team, and the study group. Thanks also to my teachers, especially Bubba, Mr. Wetherbee, Mr. P, Mr. Underhill, and the Friedlanders. All of you have made the Greenhills experience so special. So I leave with one bit of advice:

"The sooner you get behind, the more time you have to catch up." (Mr.P)

I showed up in 8th grade, and started out alienated, (thanx class,) a stranger. Now it's over, and I'm no longer a stranger, I'm just stranger ... I can't believe I made it — must be from my saintly habits (and lying through my teeth!) A word to you seventh graders: seniors are just old seventh graders, not legends, kings, or superheroes (well ... maybe a few of us are ...) hang on to your innocence, you'll miss it some day ... I'd like to thank my parents for sticking me here, and all their support, I love you two; DAVID BOWIE IS GOD; and finally, to you, my kittyhawk: I love you so much ... you challenged me to go on when I fell, helped me up when I was down, and scratched me behind the ears when I itched ... "I have only come here seeking knowledge, things they would not teach me of in college, I have seen the destiny you sold turn into a shining band of gold."

— Sting

As I look in retrospect over the past four years, I can't believe that I managed to survive. I've had more twists and tumbles than I could have ever imagined. Nevertheless, I would gladly do it over again.

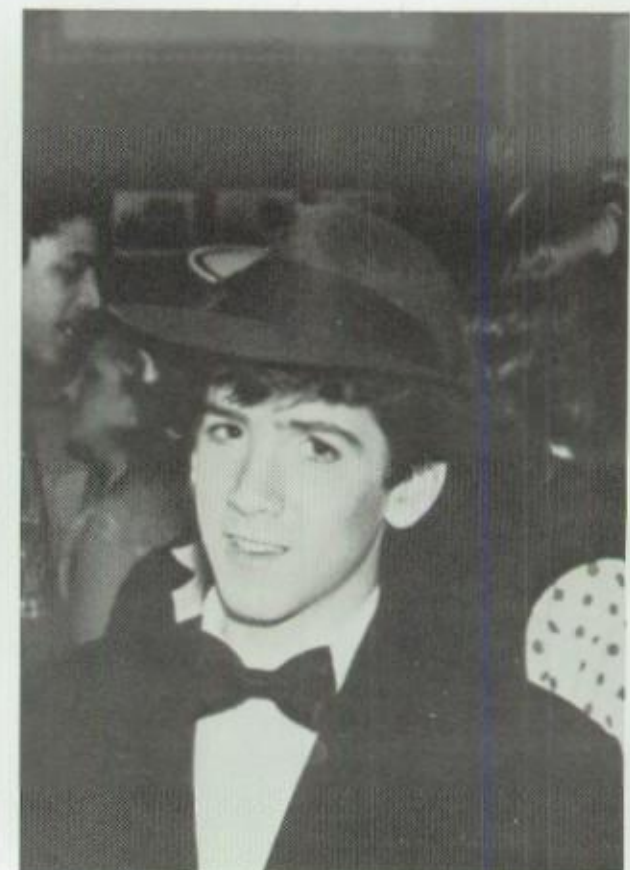

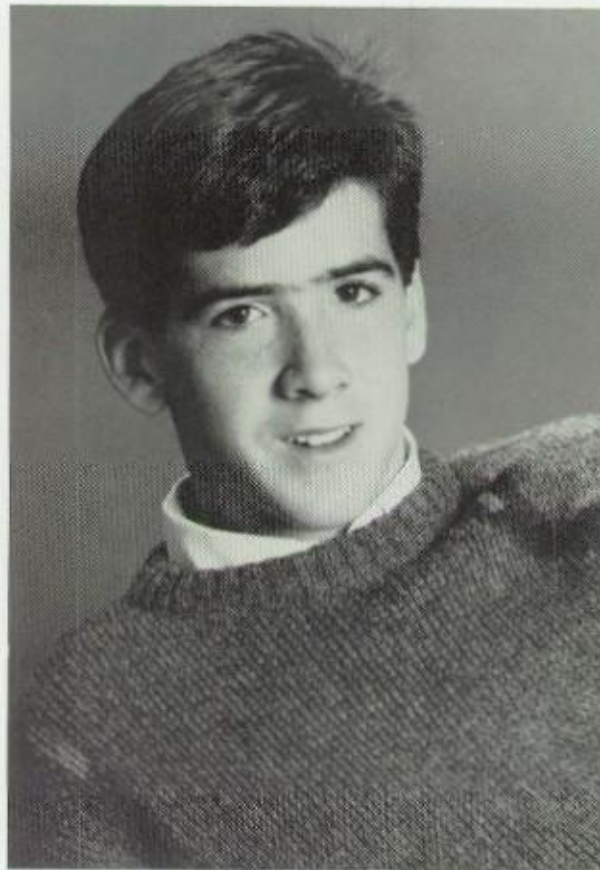

DEREK DIMCHEFF

I have learned I know very little, so I am going to college to learn I know nothing.

"Goodbye is not worthwhile."

— Thomas Hardy

Thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Friedlander, Mr. Wetherbee, John R., Jon W., Coach Ferenbach, Larry, Curly, Moe, Burmer Brannon, Merve Moss, Cosmo Hunt, and all the little people.

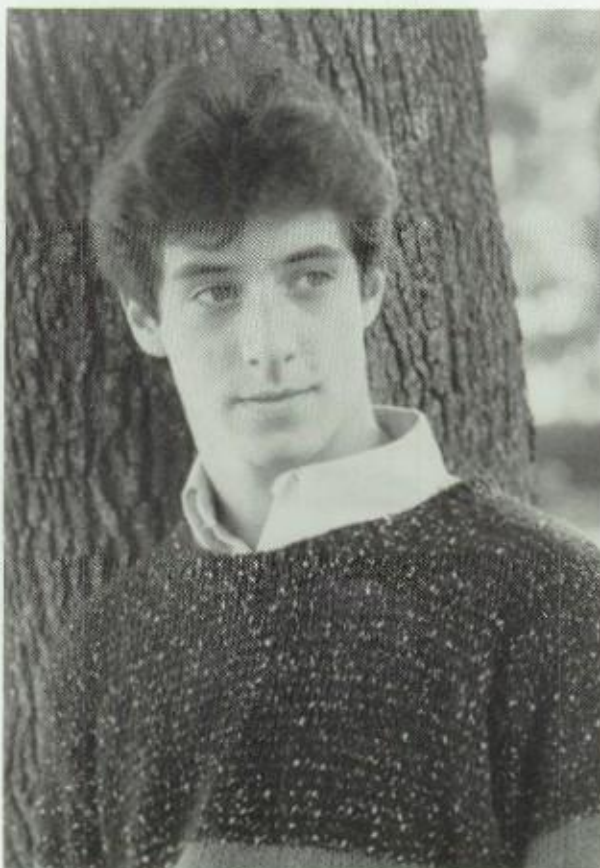

BENJAMIN EISENDRATH

My three years at Greenhills have been a time of change for me. I came to this school without a sense of direction, led by the ceaseless wanderings of a misdirected and unchallenged mind. I am leaving with a sense of purpose and a certainty that I can follow the course I have plotted for myself. I would like to thank all the people who kept me on the academic path I was so inclined to stray from. I couldn't have made it without you.

"Damn the torpedoes,
Full steam ahead!"

P.S. Good luck to all the poor slob who still have some time to serve, and steer clear of the newborn kittens!

CAROL ENNS

"I had a dream which was not at all a dream."

— Byron

Hey, babe — nobody does it better.

We will always remember. For all the times, thank you Jodi, Bruce, Jessica, Jon, Rory, David, Campy, Stacy, Art, Greg, Steve H., the rest of the class of '87, and especially Jennifer. I love you all. Toodles, Carol Mom and Dad, thanks for letting me stay.

KENT FELGNER

I've reached the top of one hill. Now is the time to set my sights on an even higher goal. So many of you have helped me to learn, to grow — there is hope for attaining future goals. You, the individuals who have been around me for the past years and interacted with me, have made possible what lies ahead. I know not the words to express my gratitude to you. For now, a simple "Thanx."

... tomorrow we will run faster, stretch out our arms farther ... And one fine morning ... (FSF)

HELEN FLANNERY

What will we be like in 25 years? Those of us who seem like hot stuff now may become cold potatoes, and some of us who don't know what we're doing now may turn out to be great successes. Whatever happens, I hope that by then we'll all be able to see each other without being judgmental. Those of you who already are self-confident enough to be understanding of others while standing up for yourselves — you make life worth living.

"What I must do is all that concerns me; not what people think." — Emerson

"Perhaps it is better to wake up after all, even to suffer, rather than to remain a dupe to one's illusions all one's life."

— Kate Chopin

Know yourself and your neighbor will not mistake you.

— Scottish Proverb

You all have nice ankles, too.

BARNABY FRY

I would like to thank all those people who never belonged here, they make Greenhills what it is.

Mr. Wetherbee — who helped me be strange with creative results

Mr. Friedlander — who convinced me it was okay

Mr. Underhill — who had more faith in me than any sane person should have

Mrs. Voorhees — who never strangled me

Mr. Broadway — who taught me how to read the New York Times

Dave — who was my playmate

And everyone who smiled at me and never told me to get a haircut.

ERIN GERRITY

SPENCER GLENDON

"I don't like work — no man does — but I like what is in the work — the chance to find yourself. Your own reality — for yourself, not for others." — Conrad Without some people there is no way I could have gained so much. Thank-you Mr. Forstner, you have been a huge influence all my life, plus you taught me to play doubles. I'll try to get through college.

"If the fool would persist in his folly he would become wise." — Blake

Tonia — Thank you for being there

Mom — I'll always be your little boy, you make me very proud

Dad — You're the best; someday soon you'll have a forehead to match

Squirt — You're never too old to be tickled; give 'em hell.

My friends know who they are and I thank them.

De Doo Doo Doo De Da Da Da — Gordon Sumner

Fry, Gerrity, Glendon — a tradition no one would want to repeat.

Goodbye

SCOT HAYNES

The three years I've been at GH I've learned a lot and had a lot of fun. Some of this activity is due to responsible, partly sane, adults. Thank you Mr. Friedlander, Mr. Forstner, and other pertinent GH staff.

To the Soccer team: I have one thing to say, "Hey you — !" To the Roach: Take care of your wife (Kathy) and Sam (Baby Burg). I'll see you later. To Mr. Manning: Thank you for giving me a chance.

Thanks Mom and Dad you've supported me all the way and you've put up with your fair share, thanks!

STEPHEN HECKERT

"If we could not laugh,
we would all go insane."

— Jimmy Buffet

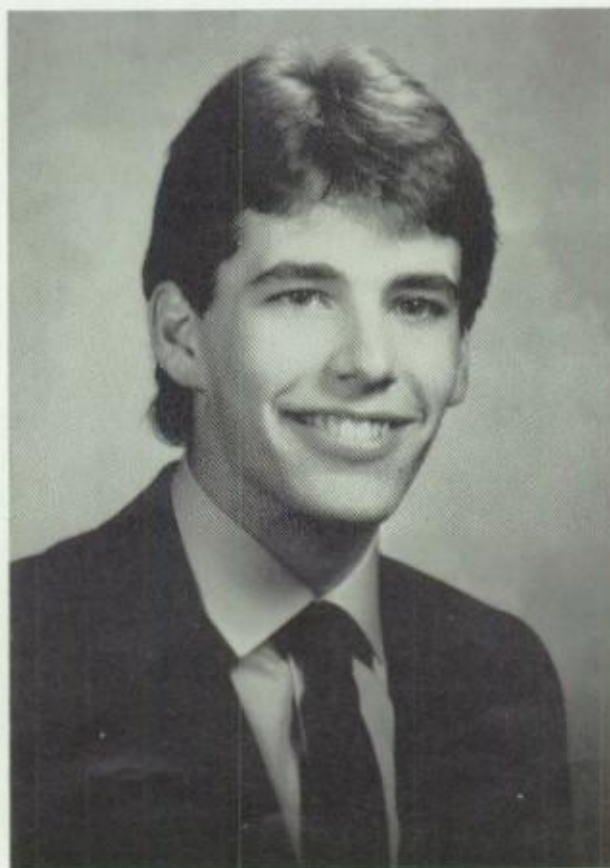

You can never let life get the best of you, never. When it looks like there's nothing you can do to stop it, laugh, or you will go insane. Trust me. (Of course if you go around laughing all the time people will think you're insane anyway). Thanks to everyone who helped me laugh, and those who laughed with me, I needed it.

I LOVE YOU ALL!! (except you LOREN!)

JAE KIM

It's taken 6 years (six years!?!) but it's finally over, faces have come and gone, memories faded, and whole courses totally forgotten. So much has happened, some good, some bad, some Zellers ("ooowwh") and overall it's been, well ... okay. Thanks Ben, Doug, Steve; weekend warriors. Kathy, you can have my locker, but stay out of my college radius. Helen, keep your ankles clean. Mike, some day you'll find the girl. Spencer, I probably wouldn't have made it without you. To all I wish you a bright future and a thanks, I've learned a lot.

VIVEK KUMRA

"The graduations hang on the wall,
But they never really helped us at all.
No they never taught us what was real:
Iron and Coke and Chromium Steel." B.J.

Ring! The alarm goes off. It is 6:30 A.M. Time to drag myself out of bed and go to school. Every morning, from seventh grade on, I asked myself, "Is it worth it?"

Looking back, I find, "Hell yes. It was worth it." I wouldn't have been able to meet any of the great people here . . . Wheels, Hack, Twinky, Pee-Wee, and practically everyone else who I met. They say Greenhills is a place full of snobs who you'd never want to be friends with and I couldn't disagree more. Growing up with these people from an immature 12 year old to a blatantly immature senior has been an experience I'll remember for a lifetime.

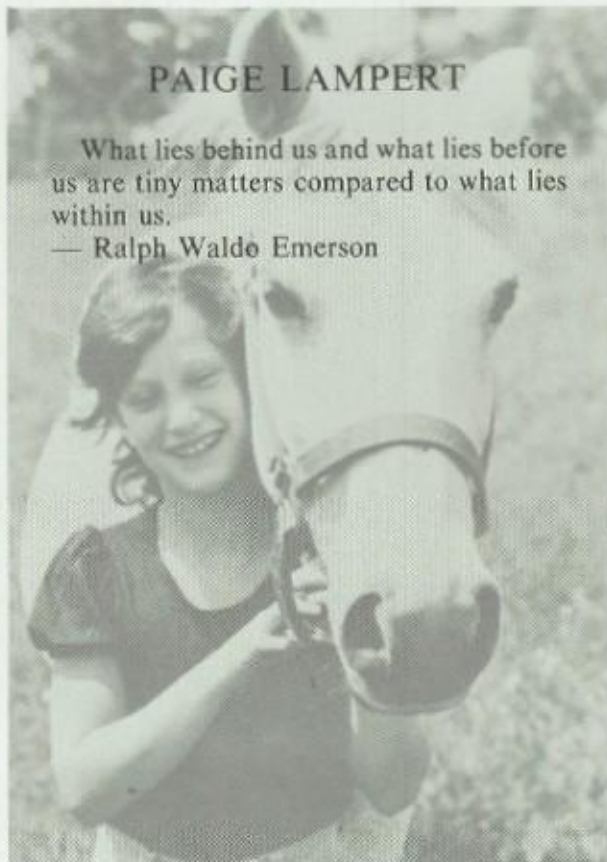

And I'll always remember those who taught us, those who helped us grow up. BZ, Ms. D, the real Mr. T and the rest who have "expanded my horizons." This really is a hell of a place. Thanks everybody for making my stay here much more than worthwhile.

JOHN LILLEY

Things are now winding to a close for the class of '87, and we are now trying to focus on our future. I am looking forward with enthusiasm to the challenges that face me.

But before I go; thanks especially to Mr. Forstner, Mr. Underhill, Ms. DePree, and to all the others who have helped me (you know who you are).

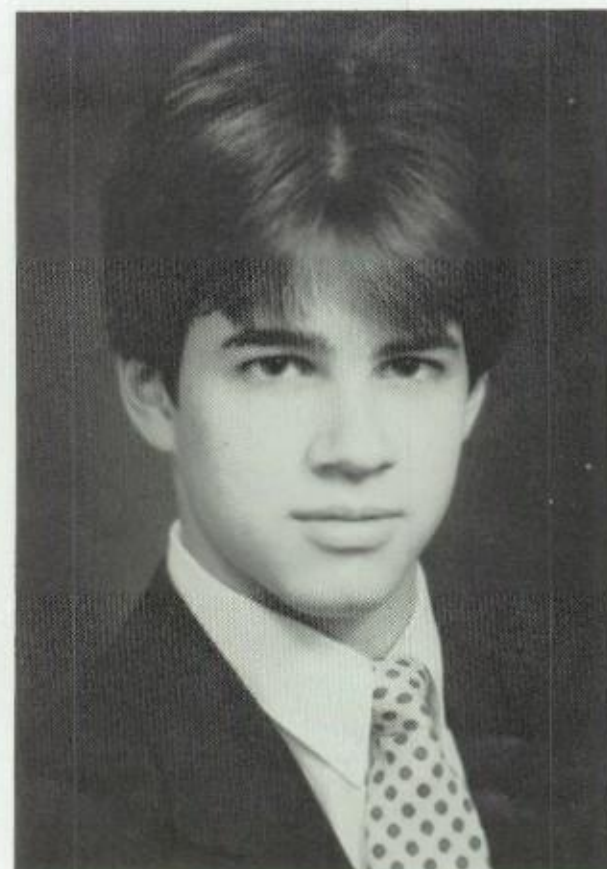

Also, some special memories; Get a life! Gum Bro! Is that you? da, I think so. Green socks!?!

The best part, however, of these three long years at this school has been the special friends that I have acquired. Thanks guys, for the future wouldn't have been the same.

"A whole stack of memories will never equal one little hope." — Snoopy

But like Snoopy says, it is now time to forget the past, and look forward to the future. So, here's to a fun, rewarding and prosperous life for me and my friends.

JENNIFER MOORE

One thing the last four years have taught me (though it probably wasn't the intent of the faculty), is to enjoy life. You can't have fun if you spend all your time worrying — about your grades, SAT scores or what "He" thinks of you. Worrying won't change it anyway. Everyone takes life too seriously. So once you've done the homework, go out and have fun. Life was not meant to be boring — LIVE IT UP!!

LAURA NICKLES

I would like to thank all the people who helped make my years at Greenhills ones full of happy memories. Special thanks and a hug to Mr. Forstner. All your time and effort have made a difference. Erin, all our schemes got us into more than our share of "mix-ups." Thank you Mom, Dad, David, and my buddy Ashley.

"Make no little plans. They have no magic to stir men's blood and probably themselves will not be realized. Make big plans. Aim high in hope and work, remembering that a noble, logical diagram once recorded will never die."
— Daniel Burnham

High school has helped me understand my goals. It has given me the foundations to reach for them. That, I think, is the chance I needed.

Will I be a veterinarian?

Will I marry Kim?

It has been recorded. Only time will tell now. I would like to thank my friends at Greenhills as well as those at Highland Park High School in Illinois.

After spending the last few months college-searching, filling out applications, etc., you begin to realize that soon it'll all be over. No more lunch privilege, free periods, deep discussions, dances, hoop, Keg runs, Proms, Pro-Pit Parties, Tootsie-Rolls, overnights, lusting over your favorite English Teacher, and hearing people say the P-word. Soon I'll be looking in new directions, with new perspectives on life, new friends — Heath, Paige, Jon, Derek, Reese, Klaiber, and WENDY, you've been the best friends in the world!!! Thanks Jimmy and Tom Friedlander for your helpful advice and support. Greenhills, I'm gonna miss ya!

Lessons on Greenhills (and life in general):

- As you get older, it gets smaller. Real small.
- You can't do everything. You'll probably try.
- No matter how lost you feel, someone will always be there.
- Never regret anything — life is just too short.
- When it's over, it's OVER (Thank God!)

Six years I have dwelt within these brick walls. They have formed my cocoon. In this place I have become my own person. I have been tutored, nurtured, educated. Now it is time for me to spread my wings and fly. I know I can soar. Thank you Greenhills.

To everyone, but especially Mandy — Take care. I love you.

Greenhills, my home away from home for the past four years, has been a source of joy, sadness, frustration, and triumph. I hope I will always be able to look back fondly on the time I spent in its comforting, not to mention carpeted, halls.

Some wonderful memories: Bowie is God, Diet Coke bottles are not green! The tree club, "Mortie, Mortie, get the cream cheese!" "Hey Mikey, I'm sleeping over, o.k.?" Helen, red is better than black.

JOHAN SAMANTA

If you didn't care what happened to me and I didn't care for you, We would zig-zag our way thru' the boredom and pain

Occasionally glancing up thru' the rain,

Wondering which of the buggers to blame, and watching for Pigs on the Wing

As this phase of my life ends, another stage begins, one that wouldn't have been possible were it not for Greenhills. What I'm trying to say is, (Aw, Geez), Thanks.

Those in rooms away and now here
With those I hold dear

Thanks to those here needed to be thanked.

PETRA VON KULAJTA

Blessed is the man who finds wisdom,
the man who gains understanding,
for she is more profitable than silver and yields better returns than gold.
She is more precious than rubies;
nothing you desire can compare with her.
Proverbs 3:13-15

Thank you to family, friends and all the wonderful people who made Greenhills what it was for me, for helping me in my search for wisdom. The knowledge I've gained, the experiences I've had, will help me as I continue in my quest for wisdom.

Thanks again
Love

THERESA WALUNAS

I can see an open green and gold field. It stretches out far beyond me, and it comes to rest placidly against the expanse of azure blue sky. A door is opened into a new world. And so I step from the portal into the meadow. I feel the warm rays of sunshine on my face and a breeze gently blows at my hair. There is peace here — a reassuring calm. Yet, I can see the storm clouds on the horizon ahead of me. The winds will be picking up soon and this grassy summit will be tossed with rain and thunder. I cannot turn back, even though I might wish it, for my first eager steps have already closed the backward door. I must go forward into the storm . . . forward upon my journey into time.

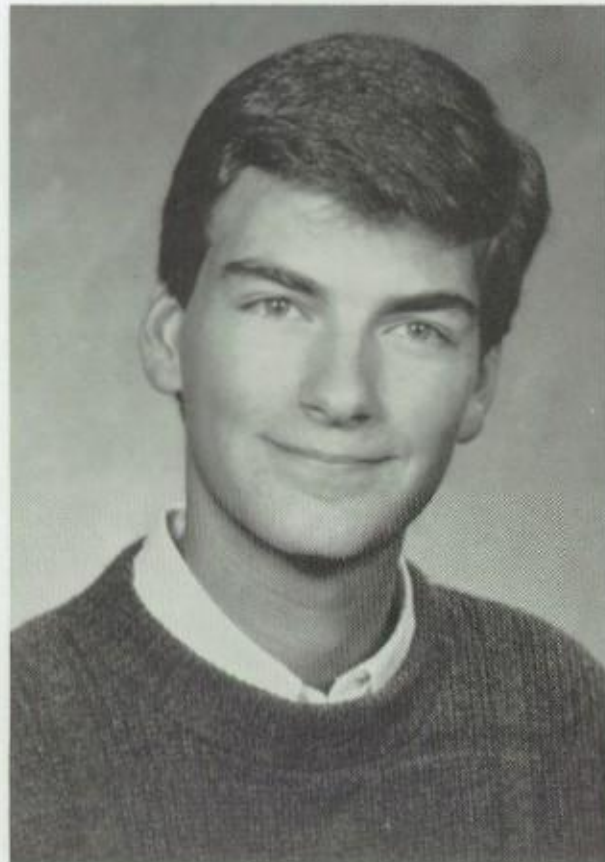

Good-bye friends, I wish you well in your own journeys as I set off on mine. May you achieve greatness within yourselves.

"Didn't you hear? We have to go."
"Go? Go where?"
"Go, leave, amscray. You didn't think we'd stay here forever?"
"Well . . . no . . . but so soon."
"Soon? Jon, you've been here five years."
"Yeah, but . . . where's Derek?"
"Man, he was the first to leave."
"I didn't get to say 'Good-bye,' or thank my teachers."
"That's life."
"John, wait up!!"
"Hey, if you don't move, life's going to pass you by. And Elisa said 'Good-bye'"
"Oh. Good-bye."
Thank you Derek, John and Elisa, and all my friends. Mom, Dad, and Gail, I really love you.

KARL WEIHMAN

It is funny how you can live side by side with a group of people for four years and then suddenly never see any of them again. For that matter I'll miss high school. But of course, that is not all there is to it. Some things perhaps I will not miss, but, for better or for worse, I'll take all the memories and repercussions with me.

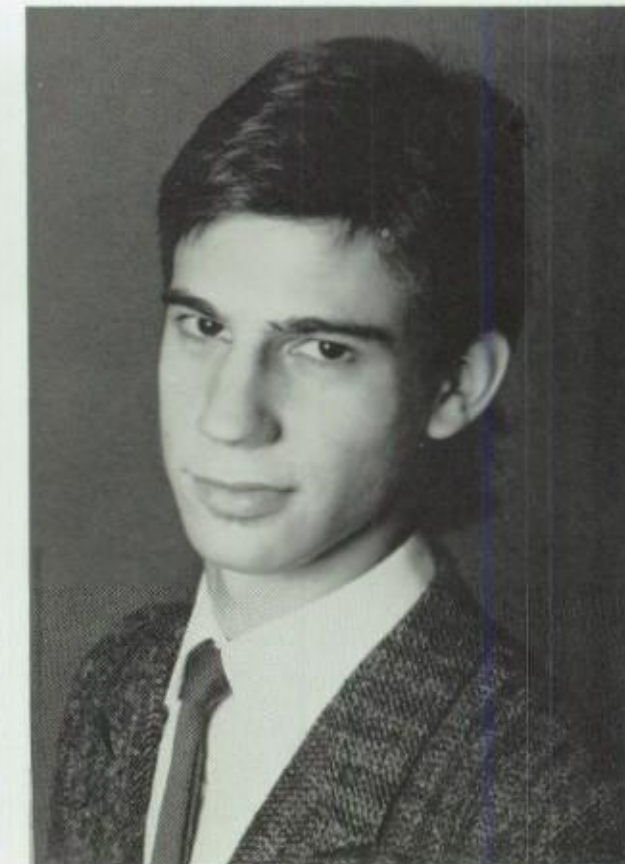

Real and sincere thanks to anyone who has ever bothered to tolerate me, and, to all the people who don't know who they are:

—Mr. Z

The end is here;
the end of the year.
It's summer now, a time for cheer.
So close the book and
Pierce your ear
Jump off a pier
Run down a deer
Slap your rear
Strip a gear
Is Tobin here?
Come back next year
Oh, just get out of here.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle

SPECIAL THANKS: To Mrs. Voorhees — for all the photos and the rubber cement (what all yearbooks are made of). To Mike Rowe who helped us deal with all our Deadline Emergencies. To Mr. Pasich for all the great pictures. To Jim Kent of Camera Art for the mugshots. To Nancy Hansen (Helen's Mom) who pulled some strings to get our cover typeset for us. To Mr. Tobin for putting up with all the hell we gave him and calling back all our advertisers. To Mrs. Knesper for being one of the few teachers willing to trust us with a computer and to Mrs. Santinga for being another. And finally, to Mrs. Parker, who tried to clean up the ever-present mess with very little luck. And of course, to all the staff members who actually tried to find something to do, Elisa and I thank you, too.

Hello Suleman! I'm sorry I don't really know you, but I think you are ~~are~~ a very nice person!!!
Have a good summer and see ya next year!!

LUV

Suleman -
I'm glad you came to G.H.
I hope you'll come here
next year. Have a good summer
- Maggie

Suleman,
You know Suleman, you
can be a pain in the ass brother sometime! But all in all I guess you're a swell kid.
So how have you liked your 1st year at Greenville. I know it's not the greatest thing, but it's worth it. Well here's some tips from a junior and a sister advise!
Work hard I mean as hard as you possibly can and don't ever get discouraged. Be a big fish in a small pond,
never a small fish in a big pond!
Always be courteous and kind and always willing to help
no matter if they are a not!
Be as competitive as one has never been! Be as snubbed as others when it comes to grades. Don't mind all damn it! Beats poken don't be shy.
Don't guess — at what others will say. You're who you are and no one will ever change that! Always keep your goals in life in mind! WIN WIN WIN! In whatever you do! Pray and put all your effort. That's all you can do!
Thank you for all the love and support.

To

Suley,

You are a really,

look on p.137

Really nice guy.

I liked being next to you
in the forum and in classes
C U X T Y R

LOV/K

Let anyone push you around, ever!
Stand up for your right, no matter how radical it may be. Carry it through! AND
REMEMBER IF IT DOESN'T PNY
OFF NOW, IT WILL IN THE FUTURE,
AND IF YOU DON'T BELIEVE ME,
READ THIS IN 5 YEARS! and my dear never look at those below you but at those above, because IT'S those who go on to beat!
Be brave and don't forget this one - Be proud of what you've accomplished and just try harder next time. Well Sule
if you follow these guidelines,
I hope to God, believe me I do you'll be a pretty damn good student, brother, cousin, son, and person. And remember take life as it comes. You have to conform to nature,
nature will conform to you.
But then again it can also be the other way around...
Well Sule I'm proud of you!
But I can be prouder. Wish you the BEST OF LUCK on all your exams, especially French. and a great future. Have faith in yourself and in God, Love, Sule
